Hall of famer, statesman Schnaitter dies at 88

BY BOB DEMAREE

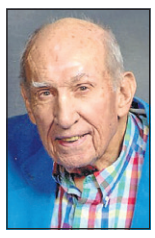
For people who love Madison and its history and people, the death of Spence Schnaitter on Friday, marks the loss of a figure seemingly already bigger than life and a man whose love for Madison was more than just talk.

Born in Shelbyville on Jan. 21, 1932, Spencer J. Schnaitter, 88, died just six days short of his 89th birthday in Cincinnati.

A high school sports hero, local attorney and statesman and a supreme storyteller, Schnaitter talked a good game and put his words into action — especially for the Madison community he called home.

"I think that when he got up in the morning he was thinking of Madison, and how he could make it better," said Julie Berry, who got to know Schnaitter when he was city attorney for Madison in the 1980s while she was assistant to Mayor Markt L. Lytle.

"Spence Schnaitter has been an icon, as far as I am concerned, since the glory days of Madison High School," Madison Cub historian Harold Lakeman said in a video for the Hoosier Hardwood blog. Schnaitter was the center on the Madison Cubs basketball team that won the 1950 state championship.



Spencer Schnaitter

"If they had kept stats for rebounds back in those days, he might have held the school record," Lakeman noted.

Spencer Schnaitter was not just a large man — his 6-foot-3 frame was fairly tall for his era — but because of his effort and heart.

"As a kid, I just called him, 'Big,' " said Jennifer Bates, owner of Colonial Flowers.

But Schnaitter was larger than life for many other reasons.

"Spence was the greatest of ambassadors for his state and his hometown of Madison. I was fortunate to be a lifelong friend of probably the finest scholar/collegiate athlete to ever represent our city," said Tony Dattilo. "This man was a statesman, a soldier, an athlete, a scholar and brought Madison a state title in 1950. Spencer Schnaitter checked all the boxes."

After graduating from Madison High School, he went to Yale University where he played baseball and was leading scorer for the basketball team. He also had offers to play professional baseball.

Schnaitter then served as an active-duty artillery officer for the US Army before going to law school at Indiana University, where he became friends with Birch Bayh, who would become Indiana's US Senator (1963-1981). After finishing law school in 1959, he returned to Madison, where he practiced law for more than 60 years.

Schnaitter's return to Madison was more than a return home. It was a chance to make a positive impact on a place he loved and make life better for Madisonians.

"He was dedicated to public service and the right kind of public servant," said Berry. "He was a good man. He was in it for all the right reasons. He wanted to help people."

Demaree returns to Courier staff

BY COURIER STAFF

Madison Courier editor Mark Campbell announced Monday the return of Madison native and award-winning journalist Bob Demaree to the newspaper's staff.

Bob Demaree

Demaree, who has served two previous stints at The Madison Courier — including a combined 10 years as an award-winning sports editor — as well as two years as managing editor of Vevay Newspapers Inc., has accepted a position on the news staff and is relocating to Madison after living and working in Indianapolis the past 20 years.

"Today is a little surreal. I am back at The Madison Courier, which I left more than 23 years ago when I moved to Indianapolis. A lot of great people are gone. People from the Courier like Graham Taylor and Jane Jacobs. Legends like Dick Naylor and John Collier. Great people like my Mom and Dad. So it's different," Demaree said. "But life goes on, and we carry on because of what we can do to make our communities a greater place. When we look at what we have, there's a lot of beauty where we live. What we do with good journalism is for the love of our community, and making it better. That's why I am looking forward to the work I will be able to do at the Courier.""

"Bob has successfully pursued several different careers over the years but he's always been a newspaper man and Madisonian by heart," said Campbell, who worked with Demaree in each of his previous tenures with the newspaper and has known Bob for parts of five decades. "It's what he loves to do and what he does best and Madison is where he belongs so it is great to have him back home at the Courier and in Madison. He will make the paper stronger with great reporting and photography skills and a thirst for news and love for the community."

Demaree graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 1976 and received his bachelor of arts in journalism and political science at Franklin College in 1990. He graduated Sullivan College with an associates degree in hotel and restaurant management in 1992 and completed his master of science degree in new media at IUPUI in 1999.

In addition to working at newspapers in Madison and Vevay, he is a former city editor at the Starke County Leader in Knox, Indiana, and was an online web producer for The Indianapolis Star. He has also worked in marketing for hhgregg, education for Indiana Virtual School and most recently served as an administrative assistant for his church, the First Baptist Church of Indianapolis.

Madison's Bilz wins mat title

BY COURIER STAFF

Kelsey Bilz became just the fifth individual in Madison High School history — and first Cub wrestler — to win a state championship when she claimed the 106-pound title at the Indiana High School Girls Wrestling State Championships at Hamilton Heights High School on Friday (See coverage on Page A4).

Bilz, a senior, became just the third female in the state's history to reach 100 career wins two weeks ago and was the first female in Madison wrestling history to qualify for the IHSAA Regional when she did so last year. She has wrestled in the IHSGW State Finals each of the last three years, finally breaking through with the title this year.

Bilz joins four other Madison Cubs to win state titles in their high school careers at the school: Dave Collins, 2-mile run, 1973; Mary Beth Ricketts, 50-yard freestyle, 1980; Mike Kemper, boys golf, 1991; and Christian Poling, boys golf, 2006. In addition, Madison has won state team championships in boys basketball (1950) and baseball (1999).

1,346 have received COVID-19 vaccine

BY COURIER STAFF

The Jefferson County Health Department is reporting that 1,346 county residents have received their first dose of the COVID-19 vaccine and another 266 have now been fully vaccinated with both doses of the inoculation.

The Health Department, which was closed on Monday for Martin Luther King Day, will resume giving vaccinations by appointment today. Those eligible are first responders, medical workers, nursing home patients and residents age 70 and over.

In addition, King's Daughters' Health has been approved to begin giving vaccinations the first week of February as the state ramps up the delivery of the vaccine with more and more doses available per week.

Appointments to get the vaccine at the Health Department are available by visiting www.ourshot.in.gov or calling 2-1-1 to schedule appointments. Appoints to get the shots at KDH will begin February.

Meanwhile, healthcare professionals are urging residents to continue to mask up, social distance and hand wash and sanitize to curb the spread of the virus.

So far that practice seems to be helping. Jefferson County's number of new cases dropped to 24 on Monday, giving the county 2,531 overall. There have been 38 total deaths but none in recent days.

The county's 7-day positivity rating has dropped from up to 15.8 on Jan. 6 to 10.1 on Jan. 18 and the seven-day positivity among unique individuals fell from 19.8 on Saturday to 15.5 on Monday.

Elsewhere, Carroll County in Kentucky has seen a spike in its numbers after an outbreak was reported last week at the Carroll County Regional Detention Center in Carrollton. There are currently 162 active cases in Carroll and 12 deaths.

Trimble County currently has 35 active cases, 464 cases overall and five deaths.

SCHNAITTER

Schnaitter served five two-year terms as a Democratic member of the Indiana House of Representatives, including time as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. He was influential in the creation of Ivy Tech Community College that led to education opportunities not just in Madison, but all over the state.

Another significant way Schnaitter made an impact was through the Madison Railroad. In 1978, it appeared that the railroad would discontinue operation, but Schnaitter was instrumental in making sure the line remained operational, which he thought was essential to local industry. "It allowed Madison to attract Arvin Sango (in 1988), and 800 well-paying jobs," his daughter, Edie Britton, said.

Schnaitter provided legal representation for the Stucker-Fork Water Conservancy District serving Jefferson, Jackson, Jennings, Scott and Clark counties, the Madison Port Authority and the Telegraph Hill-Rykers Ridge Regional Sewer District. And also provided assistance to the Indiana Rural Water Association.

"In his day, there was no better utilities attorney in the State of Indiana than Spence," Berry said.

Schnaitter served as Madison City Attorney for 10 years (1960-1966 and 1985-1987), and was Jefferson County Attorney three different times.

Berry said Schnaitter's knowledge of local government and local history made him an incredible asset in both posts.

Schnaitter was well-known for his gift for conversation as he frequented stops around the city. Bates got to know him when he would visit Colonial Flowers as a customer.

"He would come in with a flower order and leave three hours later," Bates said, noting that she and others loved the stories Schnaitter not just told but told so well.

"He had strong long-term memory," said Britton, adding he was "one huge historical resource" on Madison history and much more.

In his later years, as his health declined, there were people all over Madison who looked out for Schnaitter, making sure he was OK and helping him as much as possible.

"We called it 'Team Spence'," Bates said. "There were so many in the community on Team Spence. We loved him dearly."

"Honoring a man like Spence will not be easy but it's important, beyond civic recognition, that his family knows just how revered this man was, to so many," Dattilo said. "From my standpoint, no one will miss him, more than I."

Funeral arrangements are pending at Lytle Welty Funeral Homes & Cremation Service in Madison, www.lytlewelty.com.

STATE CHAMP!

Bilz upsets top seed to win 106-pound title

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

CICERO — For a few brief moments after the final horn sounded, maybe about five seconds, Kelsey Bilz stared straight ahead, not sure how to react. But after shaking her opponent's hand and having that same hand raised in victory by the referee, the reality sank in and a smile spread across her face.

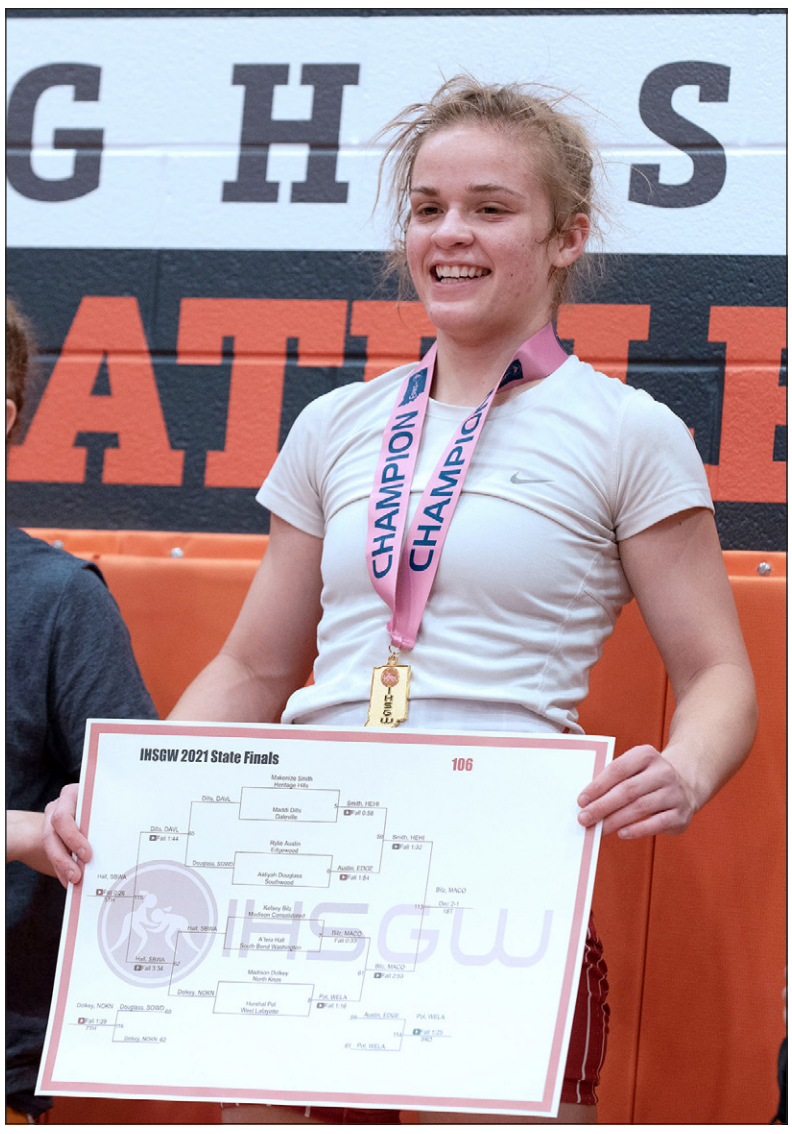
"I was just shocked. I have been wrestling for so long and I was just hesitant and so scared that I wasn't going to get it so when I did, it was breathtaking," Bilz said. "I didn't know how to react. I was just speechless."

Bilz became the first Madison wrestler in school history to win a state championship when she picked up three wins in the 106-pound weight class during the Indiana High School Girls Wrestling State Finals at Hamilton Heights High School on Friday.

Bilz tore through her first two opponents and then outlasted No. 1-ranked Makenzie Smith of Heritage Hills in the finals, 2-1, to claim the state championship. Once the victory sunk in, she sprinted to coach Tyson Skinner who lifted his diminutive grappler up into the air.

"She deserves this. She's a trend-setter for Madison girls wrestling and when they sanction this sport, she's going to be the one that is the bookmark for all other Cub wrestlers to follow," Skinner said. "I couldn't be more proud of her."

Bilz came into the tournament as the No. 3 seed thanks to a loss to Smith in the regional finals a week earlier. But Bilz wasted no time in setting up a rematch with Smith, pinning A'leia Hall of South Bend Washington in just 33 seconds in the quarterfinals and pinning West Lafayette's Hurshal Pol in 2:53 in the semifinals. Smith also recorded two first period pins of her own on her march to the finals.



Photos by David Campbell

Madison senior Kelsey Bilz won the state wrestling championship at 106 pounds at Hamilton Heights High School on Friday.

The key to beating Smith, Skinner knew, was improved legwork and Bilz and the rest of the Madison wrestling team spent the entire week working on nothing but her legs. And all that practice paid off.

Bilz and Smith spent the first period locked together on their feet with neither scoring a point, but Bilz found an opening early in the second period when she was able to get behind her opponent, grab Smith in a bear hug and throw her to the mat.

Madison's Kelsey Bilz throws Heritage Hills' Makenzie Smith for what proved to be the winning two points in the state championship match at 106 pounds at Hamilton Heights High School on Friday.

Bilz spent the rest of the period on top trying for the pin, but was called for a stalling warning to end her threat. But those two points for the takedown proved to be the crucial.

"That was big. If we go into the third still 0-0, we knew (Smith) was going to pick top and that would change the whole dynamic of the match," Skinner said. "Our plans were to defend those legs and go as far as we could and then you're talking overtime still tied at 0-0. Scoring that takedown was the whole difference in the match."

Smith indeed took top to start the third and spent the entire period aggressively trying to turn Bilz for the pin. But other than one brief moment when it appeared that Smith had finally gotten leverage, Bilz remained steadfast on her stomach, crawling away an inch at a time.

"She's really good at leg-riding and Jace (Walls), my partner, and I practiced every day before this just defending leg attacks," Bilz said. "I tried to hit them a couple of times, but I was so scared that I was going to mess up and she was going to turn me so I just played it safe."

Bilz's tactic eventually earned her a second warning for stalling — one that came with a point awarded to Smith — but it wasn't enough to change the outcome as Bilz closed out the match and the 2-1 championship win.

Cubs snap skid vs. Bulldogs

Win was Madison's first over New Albany since 1998-99 season

BY CAMERON ROGERS

NEW ALBANY — Madison boys basketball snapped a 21-game losing streak to New Albany on Friday as the Cubs beat the Bulldogs, 48-43.

Madison started the game in a match-up 2-3 zone but within the next two possessions the Cubs switched to a match-up 1-3-1 zone. The ability to play a variety of defensive schemes ended up being the story for the Cubs as they kept the Bulldogs out of rhythm.

Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson knew heading into the game that the Cubs had to mix things up against the talented Bulldogs.

"We knew in our preparation that we would have to give them different looks," Wilkerson said. "Their guards are really good, they got bigs that are really good, and they shoot it really well. So, we knew we had to mix it up."

The Cubs' defense was the key as they battled back-and-forth with the Bulldogs.

The two teams were tied at 33-33 heading into the final quarter of play. The Cubs went on a small 5-0 run to start the fourth period and then looked to close out the game.

However, New Albany never stopped fighting. As the game was winding down, Madison led just 42-41 with 38.7 seconds left but Nick Center and Luke Ommen both made big free throws at crunch time to secure the rare win over the Bulldogs in what was their Hoosier Hills Conference meeting.

Madison boys basketball celebrates after knocking off New Albany on Friday.

Ommen led the offensive charge for Madison with 18 points. Luke Miller had 11, and Kaden Oliver added seven.

For New Albany, Tucker Biven led with 14 points and Jordan Thomas chipped in 11.

With a win over Bedford North Lawrence on Tuesday and the win over New Albany Friday, the Cubs are 9-2 overall and a league-leading 2-0 — their best in the HHC since the 2006-07 season.

Wilkerson said those two wins prove that Madison can compete with the best of the best.

"(These wins) say that we have the potential to compete at the highest level in the state of Indiana. If we can get our kids to continue to believe that, and we can get the support of the community, then we feel like we have a good chance," said Wilkerson.

Madison will be back in action Friday when they host rival Southwestern in the earlier delayed Turkey Shootout. Normally the Thanksgiving eve season opener for both teams, the game was delayed by the COVID-19 pandemic so the two squads both enter the contest with 9-2 records.

LADY CUBS SWIM IN FINAL HHC MEET

Madison's girls swim team competed in their final Hoosier Hills Conference Championships on Saturday, placing eighth in the eight-team field at Jennings County.

Despite the placing, Madison coach Ashley Schutte was thrilled with her team's performance.

"The end results don't matter. Our goal going into the meet yesterday was to continue to improve as we have been throughout this very strange and challenging season. Our Lady Cubs accepted the challenge and did exactly as we asked," Schutte said. "Numbers, we could always use more swimmers — but aside from being outnumbered, the girls competed. Swimming is hard. Swimming in a highly competitive conference is challenging. There are some incredibly talented girls in this conference that will swim for their colleges next year; that kind of competition makes you better. To embrace that kind of mentality and let that fuel your drive, work ethic, and passion for anything you do, only makes you and your team stronger and better."

Overall, Madison had 10 individuals or relays post best times on Saturday.

Madison's Kelsey Bilz leaps into the arms of coach Tyson Skinner after winning the state wrestling championship at 106 pounds on Friday at Hamilton Heights High School.

CHAMP

"We figured that she was going to have to get called for stalling twice in the third period for it to make a difference," Skinner said. "The stalling call she got in the second period was a joke. She was on top trying to get the pin. I've never seen somebody get called for a stall in that situation."

Although Bilz still has the IHSAA Tournament ahead of her, the state championship served as the perfect capper to her high school career. The senior is just the third female wrestler in the state of Indiana to achieve 100 career wins and she was the first female wrestler at Madison to qualify for the IHSAA Regional when she did so a year ago.

"It was neat in a way because this match was sort of a changing of the guard, from the old to the new" Skinner said. "Makenzie Smith is a terrific wrestler and she's just a freshman and she's going to have an outstanding career, maybe one of the best ever in this state. For Kelsey to beat her as a senior was really neat to see."

"I've been dreaming of this forever. I'm just speechless," Bilz said. "I'm still shocked that it happened."

Eroded trust

Dear Annie: My fiance and I want to go back to the way we were, but it is more of a struggle for me than for him. We are planning to get an apartment together, but it is hard for me to be around him without getting upset. I have been going through a lot lately, and finding out that my fiance was lying to me was one of the worst things that has happened. At first, it was something minor, and I just chose to keep my mouth shut, but the next morning he was on his phone, and I saw pictures of naked women that he tried to hide fast. I tried to get the truth out of him, but he lied.

We went to the lake to talk about it, and it just kept escalating. He's been doing it for seven months. I found out and was actually contacting someone to get these pictures. This is cheating, isn't it? He also had multiple accounts for stuff like that which he had to pay for. He promised not to do it again, but I struggle to believe it when he continues to lie to me about different things. I want to move on and be happy with him, but when something similar comes up, I break down. What should I do? — Confused and Lost.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Confused and Lost: Of course, you break down when something similar happens. It is unacceptable for your fiance to lie to you and have other women send him naked pictures. Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me. The best way to move on and be happy with him is to go to counseling together. You can't build a successful marriage if there is a lack of trust. Stay firm with your boundaries in the relationship. Until that's settled, don't marry the bum. Best of luck to you both.

Dear Annie: Many people are not aware that the strings of surgical masks should be cut before being thrown away to prevent animals from getting entangled in the masks. Alternately, reusable masks help cut down on COVID-19 waste that pollutes waterways and oceans. Please cut the strings on your mask. — Reduce COVID Waste

Dear Reduce COVID Waste: Thank you for this unusual but — now that we think about it — obvious tip.

Dear Annie: If you can, then please refer the woman who wrote about her 15-year-old daughter steadily gaining weight to a podcast called "Half Size Me" and the host, Heather Robertson. She also has an excellent podcast called "Healthy Parents, Healthy Families," and the information therein could prevent the diet/binge cycle many of us have struggled with since our teenage years. Heather has an amazing perspective on this specific topic of having extra weight as a teenager. My general overview is that her work shares with listeners how to maintain and stop gaining weight without restricting calories and continuing the diet/binge cycle. — Stephanie

Dear Stephanie: Thank you for your recommendation. Especially as we are bombarded with information and sales tactics to "lose weight fast" and "burn holiday calories," it's important to block out the negative and harmful ads and instead find a supportive health and wellness program that works for us as individuals.

The need for personal responsibility

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: This letter is a message to "Fed Up," the reader whose husband dotes on their daughters. She needs to know that her husband, as well-meaning as he is, is NOT doing your daughters any favors. I know this all too well by example. My mother never learned to be independent. From her earliest childhood, my grandparents took care of my mother and father: Paying for their mortgage, bailing them out when they got into monetary trouble because of my father, and so much more.

Grandma continued this practice after my Grandpa passed, until the day she passed away. I was informed by Grandma, who I loved dearly, on my 16th birthday, that she expected me to grow up and fill her shoes. I was expected to take care of my mother, as she knew very well that my mother wasn't capable of it.

I quietly refused and moved several hundred miles away. Upon Grandma's passing, I was shocked to learn that she had gone through six figures in money taking care of my mother. My mother did inherit a little money from Grandma, had my father's pension and her own Social Security and other tiny incomes — enough that, if she were careful, she could have lived comfortably to the end. Instead, she spent it on cruises, trips and other expensive things.

In the end, she passed utterly penniless; her home was foreclosed upon because she ignored the property taxes that Grandma had always paid, and she neglected to have things repaired in the house that needed repairing. When she was evicted, she had no heat and no hot water.

Is this an extreme case? Likely, but it is also what could happen if "Fed Up's" husband doesn't make his "little girls" grow up. Show him my letter and ask him this: What will happen to them when you and I are gone? — Saw It Before

Dear Saw It Before: Thank you for your letter. You give some stark examples of what can happen when you give and give without teaching your children personal responsibility.

The Pacers were also forced to postpone this upcoming Friday's game at home against Rising Sun. No make-up dates for any of the games have been announced.
